May Is Building Safety Month

This May marks the 45th consecutive year that the International Code Council, an international non-profit that develops building codes and standards, has put forth its Building Safety campaign. Per the campaign's website, the event was first created in response to a series of preventable tragedies, including the Beverly Hills Supper Club Fire in Southgate, Kentucky. The deadly blaze claimed 165 lives, making it the third-deadliest fire in American history. Investigators concluded that the disaster could have been averted had officials properly enforced building safety codes.

Pennsylvania Turnpike Kicks Off Annual "Go Orange" Safety Campaign

The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission kicked off its annual "Go Orange" awareness campaign to educate drivers about the vulnerability of highway workers. The campaign runs from May to October, encouraging drivers to slow down and pay attention in work zones, emphasizing the Turnpike's dedication to safety, and paying tribute to those who have died in the line of duty.

Prepping for Water Safety

Hosted each May by a national coalition of water safety advocates (the American Red Cross, the National Drowning Prevention Alliance, the National Recreation and Park Association, the World Waterpark Association, and the Pool & Hot Tub Alliance), Water Safety Month is here!

With temperatures rising, there is no doubt that peak swimming season is about to be upon us. The campaign's primary goal is to prevent drowning by reminding Americans how to be safer in, on, and around water. Join us in sharing the coalition's important safety information to commemorate this year's Water Safety Month.
